

Nicotine replacement therapy saves our healthcare system $1.3 billion per year.

An illustration showing two hands, one on the left and one on the right, holding two broken cigarettes. The cigarettes are white with orange filters and are broken in the middle, with small red lines indicating the break. The background is a light blue gradient.

That's because 286,000 smokers are able to quit, saving $4,656 per person per year.

